"WITH SWEETEST FLOWERS ENRICH'D, FROM VARIOUS GARDENS CULL'D WITH CARE."

VOL. XII-NO 34.

Period bound class :

206

γ.

the su-

Hota Wife,

Ka

10. s who

d Ge-

mage

Y.

look eil on

1 y omi

Many

wing and low.

Car-erate

an.

aulj.

icu.

pri-

M.

s his cie

ice,

e,

VS.

N

be

66

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1800.

WHOLK NO. 606.

BASEM; OR, THE BLACKSMITH.

BASEM'S story had been listened to with great attention, and really appeared singular to his hearers: "I profess, Hadgi," said Giasar, "that the like of what has befallen you to-day, was never experienced by man before." "Yes," replied Basem. "and all this good which has happened, is in spite of Haroon al R. sheed. When I lest Mallim Otman," continued he, "I went to the bazar, and provided a double quantity of each article, and lighted my lamps, as you see, nor can that pimp the Khalif shut up my house, or by an ordinance abolish my enjoyment." Having said this with an air of exultation, he filled a bumper, and gave them fong; after which he drank his wine, and eat some of his cabab, with kernals of pistachio nuts. He then filled his glass again, and passing it three times round the candle, he sung a shanza of a drinking song. On drinking his second glass, "This," said he, "in spite of the Khalif! I have this day taken money and sweetmeats, I have eaten sowls, and by Ullah I will die a bildar."

It now being near midnight, the Khallf and his two attendants arose to take formal leave, "We beg your permission to retire," faid they. "You are your own masters," replied Basem, without moving from his seat, "the permission is with yourselves. God will afflict with adversity the man who wishes you to visit him. May no good be decreed for you!" The Mosul merchants could not help laughing at this parting benediction, but walking down stairs, they let themselves out, and shutting the street-door behind them, returned as usual to their apartments in the palace.

Next morning foon after fun-rife, Basem, starting up from sleep, "A new day, new provision," faid he, "by Heaven I will die a bildar!" He then dreffed himself as the day before, combed his beard, twifted his whikers, and fallied forth, little expeding what was to happen. On his arrival at the palace, he, without further ceremony, placed himself among the ten bildars who were in daily waiting. When the Khalif came into the divan, his eyes were employed to discover Basem among the bildars, and, disguised as he was, he foon recognized him. Then calling Giafar, who proftrated himfelf before him, "Do you observe," fait he, "Giafar, our friend Batem yonder? You shall foon fee how I will perplex him." The chief of the bildars being called into the presence after bowing before the Khaisf, stood filent: "What is the number of your corps ?" faid the Khalif. "In all, thirty," replied the bildar, "ten of whom attend three days at the palace, and at the expiration of that time are relieved by other ten, fo that there is always the fame number in waiting, by rotation." "I wish," faid the Khalif, "to review those now present, and to examine each par-ticularly." The chief, lifting both his hands to his head, and bowing low as the ground, in token of obedience, retired backwards: then, turning towards the door, exclaimed with a loud voice, fore him." The order was inftantly obeyed, and Basem arranged himself with the others in the divan, but not without being alarmed, and saying to himself, "Mercy on me! what can all this mean? Yesterday was the inquisition and reckoning with the Cadi; to-day it is with the Khalif in person; by Ullah, it will be the vinegar to vesterday's oil." The Khalif now asked the bildar who stood nearest, "What is your name?" "Achmed, my Lord," replied he, "Whose son are you?" The son of Abdallah." "What allowance do you receive, Achmed?" "Ten dinars a month, fisteen pounds of mutton daily, and a suit of clothes once a year." "Is your appointment of late, or of old standing?" "I succeeded to my sather, who resigned in my savor; and I am well contented with the honorable office." You are deserving of it," said the Khalif. "Let the next in order advance."

Whilit the Khalif was employed in examining the bildars, Basem, as his turn drew nearer, became more and more alarmed. "Good God!" said he to himself, "one mischance is still worse than the other: till this day such a thing as this review was never heard of. There is no remedy or support but from God! By Ullah, this is ten times a worse affair than that of the Cadi! O black hour!" continued he, in an apostrophe to to himsels. "Why did you not leave Bagdat yesterday? see the consequence of your change of resolution. Every thing but good befalls you. The Khalif will presently, demand of you your name, your father's name, and the amount of your allowance. Should he insist on all this, what will you answer? If you answer, my name is Basem the blacksmith; will he not say, you pimp of a spy, who made you a bildar? You! who are you? that you should dare to polute my palace, by mixing with my bildars! Alas! there is no trust nor help but in God."

The Khalif, who had all along observed Bafem's embarrasiment, with difficulty avoided difcovering himfelf, and was repeatedly obliged to put his handkerchief to his mouth to prevent laughing, or to turn his head afide to avoid expoing himself. The last of the bildars was now examined, and being arranged on the other fide with his companions, Basem remained alone, in trembling apprehension, his eyes cast down, and confusion depicted in his countenance. The Khalif, with the utmost difficulty restrained laughing, when he ordered him to approach. The order was repeated three times, but Basem, as if insenfible, remained fixed to the spot. The chief of the bildars at length aroused him by a push on the ribs, saying, "You fellow, answer the Emeer al Moumaneen." Basem starting, as if from a dream, asked hastily, "What's the matter?" "What is your name?" said the Khalif. "Meaning me, fir," faid Basem, in great perturbation. "Yes, it is you I mean." Basem then began to advance, but his leg's could hardly perform their office; he made one step forward, and another backward, till he tottered near enough to make his obeisance.

ken of obedience, retired backwards: then, turning towards the door, exclaimed with a loud voice, bad great difficulty to refrain from laughing aloud, and as he spoke to Basem was obliged to turn his mancen, that all you present do now appear bemancen, that all you present do now appear behead aside; and to hold a handkerchief to his

Khalif was highly diverted at this manceuvre; but mouth. The Khalif then asked his name, his father's name, his present appointments, and by what means they were obtained. "Is it to me you speak, Hadgi Khalis?" replied Basem. The Khalis calmly answered, "Yes;" but Giasar, who stood near his master, said to Basem, in an angry tone, "You shred of bildars, answer the Emeer al Moumaneen speedily, and speak with more respect, or the sword will soon be applied to your neck." Basem's consuston was now complete. "Misfortune," said he to himself, "will not leave me to visit some one else! By Ullah; O wretch that thou art, every thing may happen to you, life excepted, for this is the moment that must discover you, and the Khalif will infallibly order your head to be ftruck off: God only remains, and in him is my only hope." After a paule, during which the Khalif had recovered his paule, during which the Khalif had recovered his gravity. "And so," said he, "you are a bildar, the son of a bildar?" "Yes, yes, Hadgi Khalif," hastily replied Basem, "I am a bildar, the son of a bildar, and my mother was a bildar before me." It was not in the power of the Khalif, nor of his Vizir, nor of any of those present, to refrain from laughing at this extravagant answer. "You are then a bildar, the son of a bildar, and your allowance is twenty dinars, and five pounds of mutton; and this is your yearly appointment?".

"O yes, yes, Emeer al Moumaneen," replied Basem, "and may the decrees of God be your protection!" "This appointment, which descended from your grandfather and father, you now enjoy. It is well; in the mean time do your felect three bildars, to accompany you to the dungeon of blood, and immediately bring before me the four banditti, now confined there, who have already confessed their guilt."

Here the Vizir interpoling, proposed that the Governor, in whose custody the prisoners were, should be ordered to procure them; to which the Khalif gave his affent. In a very short while, the Governor made his appearance, with the four criminals, their arms pointoned, and their heads bare. They were banditti, who not only robbed on the highway, but had added murder to robbery, in desiance to the laws of God.

While the three bildars, with each a criminal, flood arranged in order, Basem was lost in dread-ful respections. "This crowns all!" said he to himself, "every new missortune is more curst than its prior sister. By Uslah! to escape from death is now impossible." At this instant, the Khalif called to him, "You there, are you not one of my established bildars? Why do you not lead out your criminal, as your companions have done?" Basem being now obliged to obey, laid hands on the fourth prisoner, tied his hands behind him, cut open his vest, and tied a handkerchief over his eyes; then took his stand behind him, but without moving his sword. "I am lost," thought he, "how can I manage the sword? In a few minutes it will be found to be a piece of date tree: I shall be the public jest, and lose my head by the Khalif's order. In what a wretched scrape am I involved!" He then took his sword from the belt, and grassping the hilt in his right hand, he rested the sword on the lest arm. The Khalif was highly diverted at this manageners to be dazzle the eyes of the Emeer al Moumancen." The Khalif, feemingly acquiefcing in this answer, turned to the first bildar, and commanded him to ftrike; when in a moment the head was fewered from his body, "Well done, Ach-med," faid the Khalif; and at the fame time ordered him a prefent, and an increase of falary.

The two other criminals were next decapitated, and the executioners received the fame commendation and gratuity that their companion had done. The Khalif then turning to Bafem, "You, my eftablished bilder," faid he, "cut off the head of your criminal, as your comrades have done, and be entitled to the like reward." But Basem was lost in thought, or rather in a state of supifaction, till Mesrour Repping up to him, and touching him on the fide, while pered in bis ear, " Aniwer the Emeer al Moumaneen, and obey his commands, or elfe your head shall instantly fly from your shoulders, like those of the banditti." aroused from his reverie, lifting up his head, said, "Yes, yes, Emeer al Moumancen." "Strike off the head of your siloner," faid the Khalif. " Upon my head and eyes be sephed Bafem; then drawing near the furviving culprit, "It is the Khalif's command" faid he, "that your head should be severed from your body. If you are prepared to pronounce the confession of your faith, pronounce it, for this is the last hour that God has permitted you to breathe." The culprit diftinetly recited the Moslem creed.

While Balem bared his right arm to the elbow, fiercely rolling his eyes, walked thrice round the prifoner, defiring he might declare his firm belief, that this was the ordinance of God, and the day appointed by Providence for his leaving the world. "If you are thirfly," added he, "I will give you to drink; if hungry, I will feed you: and if innocent, lay with a loud voice, I am an innocent

The Khalif was very attentive to all that paffed, and highly diverted by Basem's ingenuity. The criminal now exclaimed in a loud voice, "I am an innocent man." "You lie;" replied Basem, "but I have a secret, which I will not discover but to the Khalif himselt ;" he then approached, and kiffing the ground, faid, "O Emeer al Moumaneen, hear me only two words; I have along with me a treasure, which has been long in our family. It is this fword," laying it before the Khalif, " which poffesses The power of this talifman is most wondera talifman. ful, O Hadgi Khalif," continued he; "if this man is innocent, the fword, when untheathed, will appear to be wood; but if he is guilty, it will emit a flash of fire, which will confume his neck, as if it were a reed." "Let us have a proof of this prodigy," faid the Kalif, "fitike the neck of the criminal." "I am prepared and obedient," replied Basem; then turning to the criminal, and placing himself in a posture to execute the final order, your permission O Hadgi Khalis." "Smite the neck of the criminal," faid the Khalif. Bafein now unsheathed his wooden fword, exclaiming with an air of triumph, i Innocent | my Lord;" to the admiration and diversion of all who were present in the divan.

When the laughter he had occasioned ceased, Basem addreffing the Khalif, "O Hadgi Khalif," said he, "this man was unjustly condemned, let him be set free." The Khalif, after having ordered the criminal to be liberated, called the head bildar, and pointing to Balem, "Let that man," faid he, "be immediately enrolled in your corps, with the usual appointment." He then gave directions, that Bafem should be completely equiped with a new fuit of clothes; and he made him a prefent of a hundred pieces of gold. The Vizir and Mefrour also made him presents in money; so that Basem, the Blacksmith, found himself at once a rich man. He foon became a companion of the Khalif, in his private hours of relaxation; and rofe, in time, to the station of chief of the Khalif's bilders.

ANECDOTE.

A Clergyman, explaining the catechism to some girls belonging to a Sunday school, told them their christian name was given them when they were admitted into Chrift's church, and became christians; defiring them to recolled the proper answer, should be hereafter repeat the question. After a few intervenings observations; "Well my love," faid he, " when was your christian name given you?"
"When I was a baby, Sir!" the replied.

MAXIM.

Perfect valor confifts in doing without witnesses all we should be capable of doing before the whole world.

ON A ROSE THAT DIED SOON AFTER THE AU. THOR WAS IN POSSESSION OF IT.

EMBLEM of Life's quick fleeting doom, Is, lovely Rofe, thy fhort-liv'd bloom! Thus they who here of life and pleasure dream, Shall fink at once in Death's confuming ftream, Proud Wealth's gay fplendor, that furround the great, The gaudy pomp that here their wifnes meet, Beauty's mild grace, and Youth's all cheerful bloom, Shall fade like thee, and wither in the tomb; All in one common lumber doom'd to lie, All, like this flower, to droop their heads and die. CONSTANTIA.

ON AN AMIABLE YOUNG LADY.

BENEATH this weeping willow's shade, The dear remains of love and truth, By friendship's forrowing hand are laid, Cut off in all the bloom of youth.

Pure was ber heart, her foul fincere. Her actions spoke a virtuous mind; Chafte, faultlefs, as her person fair, While every grace and charm combin'd.

Keen fensibility her throne, Imperial, built within her breaft, Each tender feeling was her own; Soft fympathy her foul poffes'd.

As oft at eve with forrowing hearts, The nymphs and fwains shall linger here, On thy dear grave as day departs, They'll pay the tributary tear.

And homeward as they pass along, Thy woes and virtues be their theme. 'Till emulation fires the throng; To gain like thee, "a deathlefs name,"

THE MOTHER'S PRAYER

AUTHOR of Life! who with indulgent ear, Attentive hearkens to the ferious prayer; To that bleit ear, may love maternal iteal, And let a Mother who implores prevail. From Thee, great Parent! came this charge fo dear, Incline then, Lord, and grant fond Nature's prayer ! For thefe two infants, objects more than dear, Do thou the voice of imperfection hear. Yet like the rofe-bud, which no warmth receives, To ripe its beauties and expand its leaves; The youthful features of their minds he hid, Wifdom's hand, those hidden traits shall feed. Thy leffons, Virtue, above others pure, Bear the foft bloffoms that can beit mature ; O may the plants be foster'd close by thee! And they shall ripen to the faired tree, Through life be watchful guardian of their ways, And guide their theps through Error's giddy maze.

THE VISION OF SORROW. BY W. P. CARLY.

O THOU, whose form amid the deepest gloom, That throuds the fearful f livide of night, Beams in wan visions on my pensive light, Awak'd from the cold flumbers of the tomb

Fair foirit fay, if with their wanted pow'r, Thy pure affections glow beyond the grave; Doft thou a melancholy joy receive, When mem'ry gives to thee my lonely hour?

Doll thou look down with pity on thy love, My guardian fill, as when my partner dear, Thy charming counfels footh'd my willing ear, And rais'd my foul the bufy world above.

Ah! no -- fast buried in eternal fleep, The dead behold not when the living weep.

ON MARY MAGDALEN WEEPING UNDER THE CROSS.

Translation of an Epigram of Calimer.

" I Thirft, I thirft," thou Magdalen, doft cry, " And yet no friendly fpring thefe rocks is near :" Does not a torrent iffue from thine eye? Then, Magdalena, drink the briny tear.

FLODOR AND ALEXOWINA.

A RUSSIAN TALE.

IN a lowly cottage, on the banks of the Irtifch, dwelt the venerable Schuvaloff, who mourned the loss of the aged partner of his days; of his fons, who had been torn from his in the prime of youth by the tyranic hand of power and the humble arbitation in which he had treasured his hitle flore of comforts against declining age, which had peen pillaged and burnt to the ground in an incursion of the Tartars. Yet one bleffing fill temained; and for her fake alone he looked to the future with apprehenfion ;... this was the youthful Alexowina, the daughter of his eld. eft fon, the commands of whose lord had forced him from the arms of his wife ; and grice for his lofs foon deprived the hopeless infant of a mother.

She had attained her fifteenth year; wild as the deer of her native regions, and pure as its fnows, when their Lord. Count Officvitz, for fome offence against the fiate, was bauified into Siberia, but received permiffion to take bit pealants with him. Defpair at this event feized on Schovaloff. Amidit all his misfortunes, the hope of yielding his breath on the estate endeared to him by youthful remembrances had been his folace; and the conflict of contending passions brought on a sever. Alexowina was now the gentle nurle, as the had been the fportive companion, of the good old man; but, scared in the mind, his diforder yielded not to her cares, and fhe determined on prefenting berfelf to the new Lord, and entreating him to purchafe them of Oftrovitz. She hailed the thought with rapture, and haftening to the Castle of Count Vladimir, ruth. ing into his presence, and knek before him. Her anbura hair floated in native ringlets over her shoulders, and shaded a face which beamed with intelligence and animation; and in artlefe, but impreffive accents, fhe told her fimple tale of forrow. Feodor, his adopted fon, who was prefent, with all the enthustrafin which suffering beauty cause, joined in her request. The Count smiled at his fervour, praifed the filial piety of Alexowina, and permitted him to affure Schuvaloff of his protection. Her heart was too full for utterance; the kiffed the hand of her benefactor, and eagerly returned to the cottage, followed by Feodor, whose feelings were again increased by the gratitude of Schuvaloff, while Alexowina, by turns, wept and danced around him. The health of her grandfather now fpeedily returned, and with it her accustomed gaiety. Feodor was her conftant companion ; the artlefs fimplicity of her manners, and her affectionate expressions of gravitude to him, had won his heart. During the fbort Ruffian fummer, they rambled together on the shelving banks of the rapid Irtisch; and in the feafon of fnows, he guided her acrofs the frozen defacts in his fledge till evening came; when feated around the flove, he delighted to pour the tale of instruction into her ear.

Thus rapidly and delightfully passed the hours, till Count Vladimir declared to Feodor his intentions that he should travel; but in vain did he look for his ufual grateful acquiescence to his will : convultive fobs burft from his bosom; he fell at his feet; owned his passion for Alexowina; and while he dared not hope he would approve, conjured him not to fend him away.

That the child of his friend, the fon of his adoption, thould avow his affection for a pealant girl, turprifed and enraged the Count; but he knew that love never liftened to the dictates of reason; he therefore resolved to temporife ; and, telling Feodor he would confider farther whit he had been faying, determined to remove to a diffance the cause of his sears. What were, then, the seelings of Schuvaloff, when he again faw his cottage entered by force, and himself and Alexowins carried away prisoners.

The foul of Vladimir spurned the idea of wanton cruelty; and though what he deemed necessity urged him to the banishment of Schwaloff, he resolved to solven the blow, by explaining to him the cause; and for this purpose he entered the apartment in which they were confined.

The good old mad was funk into a peaceful flumber, while Alexowine was watching by his couch with anxious sitention. When the Count entered, the fhicked, and floried on her feat ; the noise awoke him. The Count advanced to the couch; but what was her furprife, when, after gazing a few moments, he rufned forwards, and--

It was indeed the eigeft fon of Schuvaloff, the father of Alexowina; who, by his valour and the favour of his lovereign, had attained the rank he now held. But, not unmindfal of his parents, he had, at his first advancement, fent a friend to enquire for them; from whom he learned, that they had been made captives, when their cottage was deliroyed; that affection for the feenes of his youth had birth he the mail find in be had i nion ! to find factor : ed on th

> from a by the contrac burg, The alarme object

peida: of the perio

da

time Arme fide. 1 fo of I fai be sauled him to purchase that estate, and on the spot of his i issuled him to purchase that estate, and on the spot of his birth he had built a house, whither he meant to retire on the matriage of Feodor. Need I add, that, delighted to find in Alexowina a daughter worthy of the mother whom he had never ceased to mourn, he joyfully consented to her union with the noble-minded Feodor, who was rejoiced to find in the choice of his heart the daughter of his benefactor; and peace and happiness crowned an union, formed on the balis of virtue.

dwelt the the sed orn from fured his thich had turtion of ad for her ntion ;.... of his eld.

him from deprived e deer of beir Lord, fiate, was take his

on Schu-

yielding abful re-

Was now

mpanion, is difor-

d on prem to pur-ir, rufh.

r anbura

d fhaded ion; and prefent,

fervour, ted him

Was too

Feeder,

d danced fpeedily odor was to him.

ner, they

Irtifch ;

e frozen

d around

tion isto

11 Count e should al acquibolom :

red him fed and liftened tempo-er whit of Schuce, and cruelty;

to the blow, pole he lumber, anxious ed, and unt ad-and--- other of his love not un-cement.

learned,

              SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1800.

The foreign intelligence given this day, is extracted from a London paper of April 30, received at Philadelphia by the ship Active, Capt. M'Dougal, in 29 days from Lon-The death of Suwar now (the enemy of man) is contradicted ... he was at the Imperial palace in St. Peterfburg, about the last of March.

The City of Philadelphia has, for fome time paft, been alarmed by the inhuman proceedings of a banditti, whose object, evidently, is, to assassinate every woman who appears in the streets, after night, unprotected. On Wedpears in the firects, after night, unprotected. On Wed-helday evening laft week, as a woman was returning home after dark, along South-Street, the was overtaken by two of thefe ruffians, who inhumanly flruck her with some pointed infirument. The blow from one of them put a period to her existence on Thursday.

DARING ENTERPRIZE.

Extract of a letter from Captain Talbot, of the United States frigate Conflitution, to the Secretary of the Navy, dated sath of May 1800.

"I have now to acquaint you, fir, that I have for fome time face, been meditating an enterprize against a French armed ship lying at Port Plate, protected by her own guns, and a fort of three heavy cannon. It was my first intention to have gone in with the Constitution, and to have filenced the fort and ship, which had all her guns on one fide, to co-operate with the fort in defending against any hostile force. But after the best information I could gain, I found it to be formewhat dangerous to approach the en-I found it to be formewhat dangerous to approach the en-trance of the harbour with a flip of the draught of water of the Confliction. Having detained the floop Sally, which had left Port Plate but a few days before, and which was to have returned there again previous to her failing to the United States, I conceived this floop would be a furnishe veffel for a difguife; I therefore manned her at fea from the Confliction with about 90 brave feaman and mariners; the latter were to be commanded by Capt. Carmack and Lieut. Amory, when on thore; but the en-tire command of this detachment I gave to Mr. Hall, my 5rft Lieutenant, who entered the harbor of Port Plate yefterday in open day, and approached the fort and fhip, with his men in the hold of the floop, except 5 or 6 to work her in. They ran along fide of the ship, and boarded her (word in hand, without the loss of a man killed or ed her (word in hand, without the lofs of a man killed or wounded. At the moment the flip was boarded, and agreeable to my plan, Capt. Carmack and Lieut. Amory, landed with the marines, up to their necks in water, and and spiked up the cannon in the fort, before the commanding Officer in the castle had time to recollect or prepare himself for defence. Perhaps no enterprize of the same moment was ever better executed; and I seel myself under the castle had to the same the castle of the same moment was ever better executed; and I seel myself under the castle of the same the same the same that the same the same the same that the same that the same the same that the sam der great obligations to Lieut. Hall. Capt. Carmatk, and Lieut. Amory, for their avidity in undertaking to execute this enterprize, and for the handsome manner in which they performed this bold and daring undertaking.

LATEST FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

LONDON, April 30.

EN TONE

Just as this paper was going to prefs, we received the Paris Journals to the anth inft. The lateness of the hour abliges us, for this day to content ourselves with giving the following extracts :

ARMY OF ITALY.

Ceneral Sovener, Lieutenant of the General in Chief, to General BUONAPARTE, Firft Conful of the French Re-

Head Quarters at Melogno, 26 Germinal, (April 16 GENERAL For ten days the Army of Italy has been engaged with the enemy. Finding myfelf detatched from the army of the Commander in Chief, Massera, and having an opportunity of being able to give you intelligence of the army, I think it my duty to do so directly. On the 17th Germinal, Gen. Melas attacked in person the heights of Savona. Lieutenant-General Soucher, who commanded them, withstood, during the whole day, the attack of the enemy on Cadiburna and Montenotte, in order that he might be able to lend to the fort of Savona

Then, only then, the price we give. what was necessary for its defence, and to effect his retreat to Genos; for at the commencement of the day he of forces that he could not hope to overcome them. He threw a garrison of 700 men into the fort of Savona, and in the evening effected his retreat to Albiffol.

The fame day General Miollis was attacked on the Riviere di Levante, He was at first obliged to fall back; but on the 17th, General Massena advanced thither in perfon, beat the Auftrians, and took from them 2500 prifoners, among whom is General Baron d'Afpre.

On the 20th, General Maffena attacked the enemy at Safello and Aloistola. The affair continued the whole day, and on the a ft General Massens brickly repulsed the

On the 23d, 24th and 25th, General Massens but to the engagements, the result of which was constantly in our favor. He took from the enemy 4300 prisoners, seven

On the 13th, however, I had evacuated the polition of Saint Jacques, and had advanced to the line of Borgetto.—During this time General Zablomoulki completely beat the division of the enemy which was debouching by Tanaro, and had already arrived at Pieva. He took from them 500

On the 19th having received orders from Gen. Maffens to attack the enemy, I marched on the 20th. The troops took by affault and the bayonet the tower and redoubt of Melogno, with 400 prifoners, 12 of whom were officers. The Chief of the battalion of Vedal belonging to the 34th demi-brigade was the first that sushed into the entreuch-ments. The Col. of the Austrian regiment of Orange was

The numerous redoubts of Settepani were taken on the 21st. General Compere, with a part of the 7th light infantry, the grenadies of the 34th, and 20th, favoured by a very thick fog, furrounded the enemy, and took 2200 prifoners of the regiment of Hoff and of the Prince of Orange, among whom where a Major and two Lieutenant-Colonels. One standard only fell into our hands, the rest having been concealed among the rocks.

My lofs in these different affairs does not exceed one hundred and twenty wounded, and thirty killed. The lofs of the enemy, independently of the prifoners, has has been much greater.

On the soth, Gen: Claufel was engaged the whole day on the fmall hills in the neighbourhond of Saint Jacques. the took prifoners, 150 Hungarian grenadiers Chevalier, Chief du battallion, Affittant to the Adjurant General Solignac, was killed. We fought the whole day of the 22d General Solignac was wounded.

General Gudinot, Chief of the flaff, who was the bearer of dispatches from the Commander in Chief, has just joined me. I am on the heights of the Finale and Mologno.

The 104th demi-brigade has just arrived. We are going to redouble our efforts for a general and decilive attack.

PARIS, 7th Florest, (April 27) ARMY OF THE RHINE.

The Journal de Paris of the 6th inft. announces that the Army of the Rhine has made a general movement, and that it is at this moment engaged. [Gas. de France.

London, April 24. The reinforcement of the French army in Italy feems to be one of the principle objects of the Republicans. It is their intentions to penerate into Italy by way of Swifs Alps and the Valteline, to make a divertion in the rear of the Austrians, and to give vent to Gen. Massena. General Moreau is to penerate into Suabia at the fame time, and it is even thought that the First Conful, with the army of referve, will march from Dijon to Italy, to establish the principal theatre of war in that quarter,

 CHARITY SERMON.

To-morrow there will be a CHARITY SERMON preached, and a collection made, for the benefit of the CHARITY SCHOOL of the Presbyterian church, in the forenoon in the old church in Wall-ftreet, and in the afternoon of the fame day in the Brick and New churches .-

And Hymen foins the facred band, Then, only then, the price we give, For which the wife may with to live.

MARRIED __

On Saturday evening last, at Jamaics, (L. I) by the Rev Mr Fastoute, Mr John Forbes, to Mrs Satter-FIELD, both of that place.

On Wednesday evening laft, by the Rev Mr G Seigas, Mr HARMAN HENDRICKS, merchant, to Mile FANNY ISAACS, daughter of Mr Johns Haacs, Merchant, all of this city.

On Saturday morning left, about a o'clock, after a fevere illness of 18 weeks, General JOHN LAMB, aged 66 vears and a months.

The following remarkable circumstance happened at Cartmel, Lancafine. As a maid fervant belonging to a Mra Richardson was going to bed, the was much starmed by fomething rushing against the window; but her consterna-tion was greatly increased by instantly seeing a live ell bouncing about the room! The family were all called up; it was soon discovered that five squares of glass, in the window were broken; but the cause remained a mystery till day-light, when a large crane was found lying dead under the window. A river runs near the house, from which the crane had fnatched the cel, and, making towards the light, had wounded itself in such a manner, as to occafion its death. In the bird's repeated attempts to enter the window, the fish had made its escape. [London pap.

Lottery.

TICKETS REGISTERED and EXAMINED during the drawing of the LOTTERY, at No. 3 Peck-Slip.

JUST PUBLISHED.

and for fale at John Harriffon's Book-Store, Peck-Slip, THE FIRST VOLUME OF POEMS.

SAMUEL LOW. The second volume is now in the prefs.

THEATRE.

MRS. HALLAM'S NIGHT

Mrs. Hallam, respectfully informs the public that her Ben-efit is fixed for Monday, the 9th inft. when will be pre-fented a much admired Comedy, (never performed in this Theatre) called,

Wives as they were AND MAIDS AS THEY ARE.

With a FARCE and other entertainments as will be expreffed in the bills for the day.

Free Majonry.

JUST PUBLISHED,

and for fale by J. Harriston, No. 3 Peck-Slip,

THE SPIRIT OF MASONRY:

Or, the Morality and Practice of Free-Mafoury. Illufrated and explained in fourteen Lectures, by Wris. Hutchinfon, Mailer of the Lodge of Concord, Barnard-Caftle, England.

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE.

This work is highly deferving the approbation of Mafons, and very necessary for them to possess; it is one of those guides to perfection in the duties of their calling, which every perfon desirous of valuable information, will find his interest in consulting.

Two Apprentices to a genteel bulinefs, enquire of the May 3. 01 4W

COURT of APOLLO.

COME AND TASTE TRANQUILITY.

YE that groan beneath the weight Of diffipation, pride and flate, Ye that fain would pleafure find, Led by fortune, ever blind, Come and fit along with me, Come and tafte tranquility.

Would you cheerful health reflore, When advice can do no more, Seek the fresh reviving breeze, Or the fanning of the trees, Come and fit along with me, Come and tafte tranquility.

Ye that thwarted are by love, Come and murmur with the dove. Shun the falle ungrateful maid, Seek the fweet fequetter'd fhade. Come and fit along with me, Come and tafte tranquility.

FRIENDSHIP, TRUTH AND LOVE. A SONG.

SWEET is the blufh that gilds the morn, And tinges round the op'ning ray, How lovely thews the whit'ning thorn, That paleful uthers in fweet May; Come then, O SALLY, come bad prove, The joys of Friendship, Truth, and Love.

How blifstul is fweet Friendship's theme, When condor warms the lift'ning heart; When the fost tongue can claim etteem, And just advice with Truth impart; Then, SALLY, feize the moments fleet, That makes the joys of life complete.

If Love, perfusiive, should draw near, With filken robes, quite biifsful dreft, And with foft fighs affail your ear; And with Love's fweeteft terms be bleft : If candor guides the plaintive youth, Give him your Hand, your Heart, your Truth,

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

From a late London Publication.

A BANK note had been stolen out of a letter. It was traced to the bank, the clerks of which faid, they had paid it to a young man that very much refembled a person who was observed to have been present when the letter was de-livered at the general post office. This was strong presumption : to make it, however, much ftronger, the character of the young man was enquired into; and it appeared by the evidence of his brother clerks in the office, that he lived in a manner superior to what they could afford; and that he had often told them they did not live well enough for him. This had great weight with the jury ? he was convicted and executed. It appeared, unfortunately, foon after his execution, that the young man had lived in the most frugal manner to support his aged and distressed mother; and that, to prevent his being teazed by his young friends for not living in the way they did (which would have completely put a stop to his prous exertions in favor of his mother), he had recourse to an untruth, which terminated fo fatally, and fo difgracefully, a virtuous, uleful, and benevolent life, tainted only by a little foolish vanity.

TRIFLES.

" Fortune | Fortune !" faid a poor gamefter one day, " you make me lofe thousands, it is true ;--- but I'll defy thee to make me pay them."

A Reward of five thillings has been offered for a young chimney (weeper, who absconded from his master. Twice the sum is offered in the same paper, for a ftrayed terrier. The marks and tokens of both animals are the fame, vie. black and large headed.

MINIATURE PAINTING.

MR. PARISEN respectfully informs the Ladies and Geutlemen, that, from his late improvement in that art, and the great success he has had in the likenesses he has lately taken, he will engage to draw the most perfect likenefs, and finely painted in miniature. . Smould any of his pictures not prove properly fatisfactory in regard to the likenesses or painting, Mr. P. will request no compensation for his trouble.-----Profiles, and all kinds of hair devices, No 252 William-freet. 04 if

EDUCATION.

MR. and MRS. PIRSSON, return their grateful thanks to their friends, for the very liberal patronage they have experienced fince the opening of their school; beg leave to inform them and the public, that they continue to receive Young Ladies and Gentlemen, at no. 417 Pearlftreet, where are taught plain and fine Needle works, English grammatically, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, with the use of the Globes and Maps, Book keeping, &c. and the ftricteft attention paid to the manners of their

WANTED.

A BLACK BOY between twelve and fixteen years of age, to wait upon a Gentleman .-- He wants him bound for a term of years, and will give him schooling. En-May so.

WANTED,

A Journeyman Cabinet Maker, and an Apprentice to the Cabinet Making Bufinefs-- Enquire of A. Anderson, no. 50 Beekman-ftreet, who has for sale, a general affortment of the most Fathionable Furniture.

M. WATSON

INFORMS the public, she has opened the Store, no. 24 Maiden-Lane, where she has for fale, a large affortment of Ready Made Linen, of every description, consisting of Shirts, Sheets, Cravats, &c. &c. on very reasonable terms.

NB. Clothiers, and others, suppled with any quantity, on the fhortest notice.

FOR SALE,

Five years and a quarter of the time of a NEGRO BOY, about 19 years old; he is a good cook, and can attend at table, and understands taking care of a horse. Enquire of May 31. 05. the Printer.

NOTICE

IS hereby given to the public, that the subscribers have taken the FERRY from Long-Island to Catharine-Slip, (commonly called the NEW FERRY) -- And whereas it has been very much neglected heretofore, the public may now rely on the firiteft attention on both fides, by STANTON and WATERBERRY.

New-York, May 10.

Mrs. SAUNDERS

Has removed her MILINARY from No. 13 to No. 121 William-ftreet, (the house lately occupied by Mr Benjamin I. Moore) where her cultomers and others may be supplied as usual, with the following articles, on the loweft terms, viz. Straw Trimmings, Silk and Cotton Gimps and Trimmings, Frogs and Roleis for Ladies Gowns, Silk and Cotton Gudles for the waift ... with a general affortment of Milinary as usual. NB. Two or three Apprentices wanted to the above bufinefa. May 3. tf

JOHN BLACK,

Book binder, Book-feller and Stationer,

Has removed from No 5 to No. 31 Cedar-ftreet, eaft fide of Broadway, where Book-Binding is done in every mode of its branches, with alacrity, both neat and ftrong.

Wanted, a fleady, fober, induffrious Journeyman, that a good workman; and an Apprentice, between fourteen and fifteen years old, of good morals and pretty good education, to learn the Book-Binding, and to attend a Book-Store when occasion requires

NB. Subscriptions received for Mr Dunlap's German Theatre. 6 State Road LOTTERY TICKETS, no. 1, Registered and Examined ---- warranted correct, or no pay, Old books fold, bought, or exchanged.

THE PLEASURES OF HOPE, AND OTHER POFMS

By THOMAS CAMPARLE.

Are just published by Jones Bull, no. 403 PearlStreet, at 50 cents in boards, and 6a cents nearly bound and lettered; and may be had of the following bookfellers: Samuel Campbell, 184 Pearl-Street;

Wiliam Falconer, corner of Pine and Water-Streets; John Harriston, no 3 Peck-Slip; and John Furman, in Broad-Street, apposite the city-hall.

NEW NOVELS

Por fale by John Harriffon, Peck-flip?

Horrors of Oakendale Abbey, Charlotte Temple, Emilia d' Varmont, or the Necessary Divorce, Alexis, or the Cottage in the Woods, Louisa, the lovely Orphan, or the Cottage on the Moors Ambrose and Eleanor, Sorrows of Wetter, Galatea, a Pastoral Romance, (by M. Cervantes) Paul and Virginia, an Indian Story, Two Coulins, Ambreño, or the Monk, by M. G. Lewis, Efg: Cafties of Athlin and Dunbayne, The Coquette. Children of the Abbey. Wieland, or the Transformation, Ormond, or the Secret Witness. Tom Jones, Letters of Charlotte, during her connexion with Wester, Camilla. Romance of the Forest. The Italian, Evelina, Paul and Mary, Young Widow, The Nun, Nature and Art, Gonfalvo of Cordova, Arundal, Haunted Priory, Memoiss of a Baronels, Pamela, Simple Story. Man of the World. Faral Folies, Inquificor, or Invifible Rambler, Fool of Quality, Myfteries of Udolpho, Myftic Cottager. Select Stories. Count Roderick's Caffle, Female Conflancy. Edward, Madame d'Barnevelt, Sutton Abbey, Zeluco, Maurice, Audley Fortefeue,
Prince of Brittany, Caroline of Lichtfield, Baron Trenck
Man of Feeling. Telemachus, Citizen of the World, Sentimental Journey, Roderick Random, Haunted Cavern, a Cafedonian Tale, Julia Benson, Vicar of Wakefield, Gabrielle de Vergey, SOMERVILLE'S CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

an

love

fron end into apo

mit lwei

frot in h hrid

the

Edi

Ra'

1

The following New Novels are just received:

AZALAIS and Aimer, a Provencel Hiftory of the 13th century, 3 vols. Emily of Lucerne, a Novel, by the author of the Duke of Clarence, 2 vols. Feudal Events, or Days of Yore, 2 vols. Henry of Northumberland, or the Hermit's Cell, a Tale of the 15th century, 3 vols. court, a Novel, by the author of the Mysterious Wife, 4 vols. Mad Man of the Mountain, a Tale, 2 vols. Ro. mance of the Caftle, s vols.

A MORNING SCHOOL,

FROM 6 till 8, A. M. where Young Lantes who wish to improve in Reading, English Grammar, Elecution, Writing, Arithmetic, the Elements of Astronomy and Geography, the use of the Globes and Maps, will have the strictest attention paid to their instruction, by the subscriber, at his Seminary for Young Ladies, no. 91 Beekmin. GAD ELY.

JOHN WESSELLS.

LOOKING GLASS FRAME MAKER,

No. 13 Barclay-ftreet, near the Roman Chapel, Has for fale, an affortment of the most fashionable Looking Glaffes, with mahogany frames, which he will fell as the most reasonable terms. April 5, 1800. 97 19

THOMAS PEDLEY,

Perfumer and Hair Dreffer,

Respectfully informs the public that he continues his bufinels at no. 219 Water-ftreet, near Crane-Wharf, where he has for fale, just from London, a complete affortment of Perfumery, and Ladies Braids of all fizes and colors. Gentlemen's Wigs and Scrips made on the fhostefi noise.

FILTERING STONES.

A pair of the best quality, extremely useful at fee, for purifying and cooling water, for fale, enquire at this office.

ANDREW R. MILLER, No. 99 William-Street,

IN addition to his affortment of DRY GOODS, had received a handsome affortment of Plain and Spangled paper Fans, richly Spangled Silk do. Plain black Paper and Crape do. Rich Cloak-Sattin, different colors. Pelings, &c Fine black and white Laces and Edgings. Fine India Book Mustins. Wadding for interlinings. Silk Velvet of differ ent colors. Furniture Dimity. A large affortment of Sat-tin and China Ribbons, worthy the attention of country merchants.

Stamped Paper.

BONDS, NOTES, BILLS of LADING, &c. fer Sale by J. Harriffon, no. 3 Peck-Slip.

Printed and Published by JOHN HARRISSON, No. 3 Peck-Slip.